

HOOVER AND LAVAL WILL CONFER ON MANY PROBLEMS

French and American Policies in World Affairs to Be Discussed

STARTING TODAY

Washington Hope of Reconciliation of Franco-
American Views

By George R. Holmes
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—French and American policies in the affairs of a weary world—which have been radically divergent in recent years—were placed vis-a-vis today in the persons of President Hoover and Premier Laval.

Their conferences, beginning today, will run the gamut of international irritants, from war debts to reparations, from disarmament to the question of France's "security," from gold reserves to the matter of extending the international debt moratorium.

Out of these discussions may come much—or nothing.

Washington is hopeful for much, hopeful of a reconciliation of Franco-American views that will spell co-operation in the future. But, in view of France's intransigent views on disarmament, security, and reparations, there is behind this attitude of hopefulness a very discernible air of skepticism that either the French or the American viewpoints will be materially altered by the brief three days of personal contact. The differences are held to be too deep-seated for ready solution.

Neither Premier Laval nor President Hoover would admit having a definite program to offer the other today.

The French statesman merely said that he was here as the guest of the American Government to discuss world problems.

"I expect all of them will be discussed and some of them settled," Laval said to newspaper correspondents.

Administration spokesmen simply stated that there was no program, and that the discussions would be of a very informal nature. In this Laval concurred. He described his pending conversations as "a tete-a-tete."

It was made very evident, however, that the thought uppermost in the French Premier's mind is to win over the United States to the old idea of entering into a "security pact," either through the agency originally proposed by Woodrow Wilson, or by implementing the Kellogg-Briand pact for the outlawry of war. This would be a "consultative pact," in which the signatory nations would agree to consult among themselves to determine the aggressor in the event of war.

Given such a guarantee, the French are prepared to make material concessions in the way of disarmament and reparations. Without it, there is believed to be scant chance that France will concede anything in these matters.

Senate leaders have made it clear, however, to President Hoover that any such pact is foredoomed to rejection. Ten years ago the Senate Foreign Affairs Committee rejected the security pact to which President Wilson agreed at Versailles without even the formality of a vote. More recently, the Senate has declined to even consider "putting teeth" into the Kellogg-Briand pact.

Farewell Party Is Held For Mrs. James Heuston

On Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Herbert Baines, of Edgely, was honored at her home, at cards, to a number of her friends at a farewell party in honor of Mrs. James Heuston, who will shortly leave Edgely to reside in Gloucester, N. J.

The guests included: Mrs. Heuston, Mrs. Howard Yates, Mrs. John Conyers and Mrs. Joseph Carroll, of Edgely; Mrs. Lester Johnson, of Tullytown; Mrs. George Gannett and Mrs. Joseph Whyatt, of Bristol.

A delightful repast was served, and Mrs. Heuston was presented with a handsome leather traveling bag, as a testimonial of the esteem in which she is held.

TELLS OF THE POLICY OF AUTO MANUFACTURERS

William Roth, Olds Motor
Works, Addresses Rotary Club Here

CONDITIONS CHANGED

The change in policy existing between automobile dealer and factory was the topic stressed yesterday at the weekly meeting of the Bristol Rotary Club, when that organization was addressed by Mr. William Roth, Eastern District service manager of the Olds Motor Works, Lansing, Michigan.

Mr. Roth was the guest of William Warner, Enterprise, Garage, local Oldsmobile dealer, and he gave a very interesting discussion of the relationship which exists today between the automobile dealer and the factory whose product he sells.

The speaker explained how years ago and during the infancy of the automobile industry, it was the object and aim of the automobile factory organization to get as many dealers as possible, load him up with as many cars as possible and then leave him to do the rest.

Now dealers are selected for their responsibility, honesty and integrity of dealing. He is not loaded up with a lot of cars nor is he compelled to conduct his business in a building which makes him carry more overhead expense than the potential business warrants.

The factory nowadays guarantees cars for 90 days and for from 10,000 to 15,000 miles.

The dealer is advised on allowance for second hand cars and is aided in giving a service which is much to the benefit of the purchaser.

Mr. Roth stated that the depression had done a lot of good to the automobile industry. It has impressed upon the trade the necessity for honest dealing with the customer, the urgency for an effort to satisfy the car owners and the bringing about of a saner merchandising policy.

WHERE TO BUY

One of those myths, which begin nobody knows where and are without rhyme or reason, is to the effect that one can buy cheaper out of town. The specious slogan "Buy out-of-town and save money" profits no one but the mail order house and the city concern seeking business from smaller communities within shopping distance.

Quality being equal, the home-town merchant can give his customer better values than his out-of-town competitors and, what is equally important, can give each customer the personal service that counts so much in modern business relations. The best guarantee of quality is not the biggest store and the largest volume of business. In the small city and town, where trade is limited, the good will of each customer is jealously cultivated. There the merchant cannot afford to risk the loss of a patron by unfair business practices.

With the large city institution or the mail order house it is a different story. Every day they attract and lose thousands of customers. They are doing business on such a large scale that immediate profit is more essential than satisfying every customer. They know that by extensive advertising they can get two customers for every one they lose without exhausting the field of new business.

When delivery charges or cartage are taken into account, one saves by buying at home for a few cents more than the catalog price of mail order goods or the "sale" price of big city merchandise. Moreover, a considerable saving would not compensate one for the worry, delay and disappointment that are synonymous with mail order buying.

There is also an unselfish, community side of buying at home. Communities are only as prosperous as their business establishments. They are an accurate barometer of community loyalty and progressiveness.

On Saturday, October 31st, there will be a sauer kraut supper given at the home of Mrs. Mudy, of Cornwells Heights. The proceeds will go to the Cornwells M. E. Church.

Miss Elsie Smith, of Cornwells Heights, was a caller in Philadelphia recently.

Daniel Donagon, of Hulmeville Road, is improving from his accident to his eye.

An oyster supper will be given by the Cornwells Methodist Episcopal Church on the evening of November 13th, in the church hall.

The P. O. of A., Cornwells Heights, will hold a dance on Friday evening, October 30th.

The soup sale given by the Ladies' Aid of the Cornwells M. E. Church last evening was a huge success.

The Traveling Gavel, a social organization, will hold its meeting this month in the Cornwells M. E. Church, Monday, October 26th.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Shaw and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Colburn, of Cornwells and Mount Airy, respectively, were visitors in Mauch Chunk on Sunday.

Edith and Ruth Wall, who were both on the sick list, are reported as improving.

The Philadelphia-Bucks County meeting of the P. O. S. of A. was a huge success. The hosts at the meeting were the Washington Camp, 530, P. O. S. of A., Cornwells Heights.

Earl Dissinger, Franklin P. Swelgert and Jack Mortimer were attendees at the Stroudsburg-Shippensburg football game played at Stroudsburg on Saturday afternoon.

The senior class of the Bensalem Township high school held a party at MacKenzie's barn recently. Everyone had a fine time. Miss Jane Kohler and Miss Krouser were the chaperones.

The regular meeting of the Eddington Improvement Association was held on Monday evening. The usual gathering of men attended.

12 Good Reasons Why You Should Use--- KOPPERS COKE

1. More Heat—

No matter how cold the weather, Koppers Coke will give you heat and plenty of it.

2. Quicker Heat—

A touch of the damper starts it. No waiting. No coaxing. Heat comes fast.

3. Steadier Heat—

It's nice, steady heat, too. Heat that keeps every nook and corner warm as toast all day.

4. Costs Less To Buy—

Even though it gives better results, Koppers Coke costs you much less than the solid fuels you burned before.

5. Costs Less To Burn—

It's more economical to burn, too. Altogether you will save at least two dollars out of every ten you used to spend.

6. Fewer Ashes—

You'll be surprised how little waste this improved fuel gives. A little pile holds all the ashes the average family gets in a week.

7. Less Shoveling—

Because it gives less waste, Koppers Coke eliminates most of the shoveling, shoveling and carrying out of ashes. Furnace tending is made simple and easy.

8. Saves Your Furnace

Fuels that give a lot of ash fill up the ash pit and shut out the air. Thus grates are damaged. Koppers Coke has so little ash that this danger is practically eliminated. It's so easy to keep the ash pit clean. Use Coke and your furnace will give you better results than ever before.

9. More Carbon—

It's the carbon in fuel that gives heat. And Koppers

Coke is almost all carbon. That's why you get more heat for your money.

10. Less Fuel—

Because it gives so much better heat, you'll burn less of Koppers Coke. Thus you save money in two ways—less fuel at less cost.

11. Easy To Handle—

Koppers Coke is so much lighter—so much easier to handle. A child can take care of it.

12. No Soot—

No smoke or soot. Koppers Coke is a clean-burning fuel.

"The CZARINA'S RUBIES"

by Sidney Warwick

READ THIS FIRST

The famous and sinister Czarina Rubies belong rightfully to Katharine Faring, granddaughter of a Russian prince. Her friend, Frank Severn, recovers them for her in Russia and sends Paul Federoff to England with them. Federoff is murdered at Monksilver, an empty country house owned by Severn, but the killers fail to find the gems.

Severn is kidnapped and carried unconscious to Monksilver, too, and there his friend, Jim Wynter, finds Creyke, Severn's servant, stabbed to death. He enters the house, is injured in a fight and then drugged and taken to the home of a Dr. Martell, who revives him. Wynter returns to Monksilver with his friend, Sant, and the police. Creyke's body has been carried away and the house seems to be empty. The panelled walls have been chopped and splintered, apparently in a frantic search for the jewels.

NOW GO ON

CHAPTER XXIII

Wynter had rung up the Croydon Aerodrome to ask if on a specified date a passenger named Severn had canceled his booking on an air liner from Paris, or failed to claim the seat reserved for him.

The official at the other end, to whom he had given reasons justifying the request, had promised to look up the records of passenger lists and ring him up later.

Wynter hung up the receiver and followed Milly into the drawing room. Tea had been brought in and the sight of a pile of hot buttered muffins, which were Bill Grayson's particular weakness, made him suddenly realize that he had eaten little since waking up in Dr. Martell's house.

"Yes, it shows I must be feeling just about all right again," Wynter said in answer to Milly's inquiry, "that the vision of muffins makes me positively ravenous! I expect Bill told you we found Monksilver absolutely empty? Not a trace of the dead man. But I've got some other news for you. Shut your eyes, Milly."

SURPRISE

She did so, puzzled and smiling. He dropped the string of jade and pearls round her neck.

Milly opened her eyes again wide in delighted astonishment.

"Oh, Jimmy!" she cried rapturously. "But how ever did you—"

"Never ask a conjurer how he performs his magic," Wynter told her severely. "It isn't done in the best circles."

"Jimmy, but how wonderful! I am so delighted—and so curious! Milly's voice was breathless. "Oh, you must tell me!"

"Well, when I left you busy making the bank sit up last night—I hope, by the way, that you put a link into Hildren's shameful winnings—I was out on the trail of the necklace," Wynter told her. "The rest is not a pretty story. It's a damned ugly story, and explains why I loosened, as I rather confidently hope, one or two of Malin's front teeth last night. A very nasty piece of work, Malin!"

Milly's eyes flashed indignantly. "And then he told them of Malin's attempted trick that had misfired so badly."

Milly's eyes flashed indignantly. And Bill Grayson, equally wrathful, delivered himself of a terse opinion of Malin that would have made the subject of it redde.

"And that poor girl, Katharine Faring!" cried Milly sympathetically. "—how rotten for her! But I didn't know you knew her, Jimmy."

"Oh, I knew her between two and

He was in no hurry to speak of last night's grim happenings at Monksilver.

three years ago in New York—through Frank Severn. And it was because of something she told me that I went along to Monksilver last night instead of coming back with your necklace, Milly."

He went on to tell her how her jade and pearl necklace had spent the night in a fold of the stair carpet at Monksilver.

"You know, but for that necklace I think Sant would have gone on professing doubt that I'd ever been at Monksilver or stumbled upon that murder. Why, he'd half persuaded Bill here that I'd only dreamed it!"

"Well, that cobwebbed door looked dashed convincing," said Bill.

PROPOSITION

"It was meant to look convincing, my lad," retorted Jim Wynter. "They—those mysterious 'they' at the back of it all—had gambled on that." He paused. "But talking of gambling, you're a born gambler, aren't you, Milly?—and as for Bill, though he's had to grow respectable since he took sick, I remember gorgeous hectic times with him trying to put it over the Ring good and truly."

Bill grinned and admitted nothing. "But what are you driving at Jimmy?" cried Milly.

"Well, this, that I'm going in for a little gamble and I want you to come in with me. Oh, it's a great scheme—"

The door opened interrupting just then and the Grayson man servant announced that Mr. Wynter was wanted at the telephone.

"That'll be a call I'm expecting from Imperial Airways," Wynter crossed to the door. "Tell you all about this scheme presently."

That "gamble" he had spoken of... just a brilliant plan he had evolved for helping that girl of last night out of her worry and anxieties without any sacrifice of her pride.

He was taking Katharine out to dinner tonight—he had arranged that over the telephone—when he hoped to have some cheering news for her.

Jim Wynter picked up the receiver. The voice came to him from Croydon Aerodrome:

"We find by referring to our books that the seat reserved by Mr. Severn was not cancelled or unclaimed and that we traveled a full complement of passengers on the date you mentioned."

Wynter's face was startled. With this news the mystery had grown deeper still. So Frank Severn had come to England then after all! What had his five weeks' silence meant?

As Jim Wynter raised the knocker of Katharine's flat that night it seemed a curiously long time since he had last stood at that door, so much had been crowded into the past eighteen hours.

"Hello, Katharine," as the door opened and he met her with smiling eyes. He had already found on the telephone that he couldn't roll his tongue 'round the formal "Miss Faring." Stupid things, some conventions were. "So glad you were free tonight. I have no end of news—but that'll keep till dinner."

So far Katharine knew nothing of what had happened last night.

QUIET

"Ready? Good!" as she nodded and smiled. "I thought, if you liked the idea, we might go to a little French restaurant that was a lucky find of mine before I left England," he said as they walked down to the taxi. "Matter of fact, I rang 'em up to make sure of a table. Quite a bright spot—and no music. One can't talk when you have to shout down an orchestra."

Wynter gave instructions to the driver and the taxi glided off toward London's West End through a misty veil of lamp-lit autumn dusk.

He was in no hurry to speak of last night's grim happenings at Monksilver. He would have been glad just now to have banished completely from his mind for the time all those troubled perplexities and fears that for two days had been his familiars. But for his suspense about his friend, his mood would have been one of sheer content, as he drove through the throbbing lighted streets by her side, keenly sensitive to her wistful beauty touched by the flying passing lights, to the charm of her voice with that faint un-English intonation in its low liquid cadences.

STATE NEWS

TREVERTON—Installation of a pump has been made by the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron Company to combat a fire that is burning in No. 5 vein.

The blaze is thought to have originated from a forest fire that burned through this territory last fall. No previous efforts have been made to quench the fire. Officials believe the fire has burned in to the vein proper.

YORK—An Arabian cactus has bloomed for the first time since it came into the possession of the Garner family, of Windsor, more than a hundred years ago.

Two flowers appeared on the stalk. They have bright yellow petals and a vermilion center. The plant is five feet high and its few roots can be placed in the palm of the hand.

It thrives best in arid soil and requires only a little water.

SCIENCE IS FOLLOWING OLD IDEA OF CHINESE

Necessary Vitamins Taken in Food and Sunshine Help to Keep One Well

FAULTY NUTRITION BAD

By E. V. McCollam, Ph. D., Sc. D.
School of Hygiene and Public Health
Johns Hopkins University

The ancient Chinese are often credited with originating the idea of paying a doctor to keep them well. Modern medical practice is in a measure conforming to this policy, for the latest branch of medicine to develop is that of preventive medicine—in other words, by helping people to be well born and by keeping them well by developing their resistance to disease and infection.

The increasing knowledge of vitamins has, in my opinion, an even greater value in this phase of medicine than in the prevention of the so-called "deficiency diseases." It is the borderline condition of malnutrition which it is most important to avoid since this is the grade most often met with.

Improved community health and longer life are the results of raising the vitality of mankind. Vitamins, experiments have shown, are real food-balancing substances, which play a definite part in building up the body to a condition where it can ward off many ailments.

The most important effects of faulty nutrition on the human body are the results of errors which are not taken one by one, sufficiently serious to cause immediate or spectacular distress. It is a gradual process of more or less constant causes which go on day by day rather than a single serious occurrence which in most cases is responsible for undermining the health of the individual. Of these causes it now seems certain that eating an improperly balanced or inadequate diet is one of the most important.

It is one of the causes of inferiority in physical development, instability of the nervous system, lack of recuperative power and endurance, chronic fatigue, and lack of resistance to infections such as tuberculosis and other types where specific immunity is not easily developed by the body. Natural vitality enables the tissues to resist the invasion of certain bacteria. The proper condition of the tissues constitutes an effective defense for the body against certain kinds of diseases. Obviously vitamins are not the only factor to be considered in planning an adequate diet, but a wide range of experiments have established their great importance in this regard and shown that a vitamin-rich diet increases resistance and is a factor in immunity.

In general there is a marked tendency for the diet of the average American of today to have too little calcium, too much phosphorus in proportion to the calcium, too little vitamin A, too little vitamin D, and in some cases, too little of vitamins C and G.

The system of diet which if generally followed would go a long way toward improving the physical fitness of the nation, is a very simple one, and its daily practice calls for no great trouble or expense. It calls in the main merely for the addition of certain supplementary foods which are readily obtainable.

First, and most important, is a more generous use of dairy products, especially milk. The average individual usually drinks about half a pint of milk a day. This amount should be increased to a quart. This is a feature of the diet of all pastoral people of the past and present which along with sunshine has made them superior in physical characteristics. An increasing number of Americans of all ages are now taking more milk than formerly and with beneficial results.

The second principle to remember is that there are dietary properties in the leafy vegetables which are not possessed by other foods of vegetable origin. The regular consumption of these "protective" vegetables serves not only to provide valuable nutrients not contained in adequate amounts from the milled cereals, tubers, and muscle meats of our usual diet, but also to maintain the intestinal tract in a hygienic condition. Milk also serves, through its encouragement of the growth of lactic acid-producing organisms, to bring about the disappearance from the intestine of certain types of bacteria.

It is also essential to keep in mind a third principle of importance in nutrition—that of obtaining daily a sufficient amount of vitamin D. Innumerable biologic tests have proved the importance of this vitamin for sound bone and tooth formation. The average person in the United States gets a sufficient supply of vitamin D only in the summertime—and then only if he gets out in the sunshine for an hour or more a day between the hours of ten in the morning and three in the afternoon. Otherwise to get the proper amount, a person would have to take about one spoonful of cod-liver oil every day. Through the perfection of a process developed under the Steenbock patents, however, it is now possible for the average person to obtain the additional vitamin D needed for protection through ordinary bread.

There should also be a certain amount of raw vegetable food included in the daily diet to provide a sufficient amount of the anti-scorbutic substance, vitamin C, which acts as a regulating factor. Orange, lemon and tomato juice are excellent sources of this vitamin.

If these simple principles are observed, the main features of an adequate diet will be fulfilled.

SURPRISE BIRTHDAY PARTY IS CONDUCTED FOR MRS. M. CARMAN

Finds the Guests Assembled When She Returns to Wilson Avenue Home

A surprise birthday anniversary party was tendered Mrs. M. L. Carman, of 2023 Wilson avenue, at her home, this week, by a number of her friends.

Upon Mrs. Carman's return from a call on friends in her neighborhood, she found the guests assembled and her house artistically decorated for the occasion.

Autumn flowers were used in profusion about the rooms and Halloween effects were everywhere around. Two birthday cakes, frosted in white and pink icing, graced the table, which was sumptuously spread for a feast.

The guests enjoyed an evening of dancing and Mrs. Carman was presented with beautiful and numerous gifts.

Music for dancing was provided by Miss Geraldine Risser, saxophone; Lester Risser, piano; Miss Genevieve Risser, steel guitar; and Miss Irene Hamilton, banjo mandolin.

The guests were: Mrs. Susan Prind, Harry Phipps, John F. Brady, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Nason and son, William, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Breece and children, Earl, Charles, Jr., and Janice, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Risser, Lester Risser, the Misses Genevieve and Geraldine Risser, Mrs. Clarence Kempton and children, Clarence, Jr., Mary and Geraldine; Mr. and Mrs. George Douglass and daughter, Miss Lucille Douglass, Clare Moore, Hans Madison, George Vorhis, and the Misses Berdina and Irene Hamilton, of Bristol.

MISS M. APPLETON IS HOSTESS TO TEACHERS AND CLASS MEMBERS

Lutheran Group Have Jolly Time at A Halloween Party

Miss Marguerite Appleton, of 337 Walnut street, was hostess at her home on Wednesday evening to the teacher and co-members of her class of the Lutheran Sunday School.

Pumpkin lanterns about the rooms shed a soft glow upon the guests and orange and black toned crepe paper decorations adorned the rooms. A huge bunch of orange chrysanthemums decked the center of the table. Orange-colored baskets trimmed with black and filled with candy corn were the favors.

Games were enjoyed, following which the guests had their fortunes told them.

Attendants included: the Misses Nettie McLaughlin, Alice Davies, Jean Wilson, Irvinna Coyle, Evelyn Force, Sara Swank and Devona Snyder.

A jolly evening was enjoyed and prizes in the competitive games were won by the Misses Irvinna Coyle, Jean Wilson and Alice Davies.

YOUNGSTERS GATHER FOR BIRTHDAY PARTY OF GLADYS A. HUGHES

Little Gladys Alice Hughes, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hughes, of 328 Wood street, held a birthday anniversary party, at her parents' home, on Tuesday evening. Little Gladys was seven years old on that day and invited her little friends to enjoy the occasion with her.

A large bunch of red dahlias was in the center of the table which was decorated in orange. Streamers of orange toned crepe paper were draped from the central fixture in the dining room to the places of the guests. Baskets filled with Halloween candies of corn and licorice were the favors, as well as orange-colored snappers.

Games were played and in the donkey contest favors were won by Elsie Dougherty and Jean Wilson.

The guests were: Doris Bunting, Elizabeth Smith, Venetta Marsh, Irene Bernard, Charlotte Albright, Verna Vandoren, Bertha Williams and Jean Williams, of Bristol; and Ruth, Elsie and Helen Dougherty, of Tacony.

FREE SAMPLES AT DRUGGISTS OF TWO NEW VICKS PRODUCTS

Every User of Vicks VapoRub Entitled to a Free Trial of Its New Allies—Vicks Nose & Throat Drops and Vicks Medicated Cough Drops

INTRODUCES NEW IDEA

Discovery Makes Possible New Vicks Plan of Better Home-Control of Colds

TO REDUCE 'COLDS-TAX'

Following years of research on the problem of colds and their increasing cost, Vicks Chemists announce a new discovery — Vicks Nose & Throat Drops. Based on a new idea in preventing colds, it is a perfect ally to Vicks VapoRub, the modern and better method of treating colds. Together, they make possible the new Vicks Plan of better Control of Colds in the home—and further reduction of the family "Colds-Tax" of time, money and discomfort.

Here is the Plan:

1—Before a Cold Starts.
On exposure to colds or any of the causes that ordinarily lead to colds—(crowded indoor places—stuffy, poorly ventilated rooms—sudden temperature changes—wet and cold)—that slow down the normal functioning of the nose, Nature's marvelous "first line of defense against colds"—use Vicks Drops promptly. Or, if a cold actually threatens—when you feel that first stuffy, sneezy irritation of the nasal passages—a few drops up each nostril, and many annoying colds will be avoided.

2—When a Cold Strikes.

Use the convenient Vicks Drops during the day—anytime, any place—as often as needed for comfort and relief. At bedtime, rub Vicks VapoRub well over throat and chest and cover with warm flannel. Leave bed-clothing loose around the neck so the medicated vapors can be inhaled all night long. This Vicks Plan gives you a full 24-hour treatment. (If there is a cough, you will like another new Vicks product—Vicks Cough Drops—actually medicated with ingredients of Vicks VapoRub.)

Trial Packages Free.

In order that every user of Vicks VapoRub may try the two new Vicks products now being introduced, a supply of free trial packages of each has been sent to every druggist in the United States. Go to your druggist today and ask for yours. If, by any chance his supply is exhausted, send us the top of a Vicks VapoRub carton—or coupon from the VapoRub directions folder—and we will mail free samples direct to you, together with a folder on the new Vicks Plan for Control of Colds in the home. YOU BEGIN TO
SAVE MONEY
THE MINUTE
YOU BUY IT

Balance the few cents a day that buys Frigidaire against its daily savings. The figures will show you that to buy Frigidaire right now is one of the most profitable investments you can make. For Frigidaire begins to save money the minute you buy it. And it keeps on saving—week after week—month after month—and year after year.

Now, even more than ever before, Frigidaire stands out as the unquestioned value in the field of refrigeration. For feature after feature has been added—improvement after improvement has been made—yet, Frigidaire prices have been reduced throughout the line.

In fact you can actually buy Frigidaire for but very little more than you would pay for an untried, unknown make. Just a few dollars down will put Frigidaire in your home and the future monthly payments can be made so small they will scarcely make a dent in your budget.

Be sure the name Frigidaire is on the electric refrigerator you select.

SPORTS

ANTICIPATE MORE UPSETS IN FOOTBALL CLASHES

By Eddie Casey
Former All American Half Back and
Now Head Football Coach at Harvard (Written For and Copyrighted, 1931, by International News Service)

BOSTON, Oct. 23.—Reversals of form, upsets, dramatic uprisings by supposedly minor teams and startling performances by supposedly good teams already have featured the 1931 football season. More upsets, more uprisings and possibly some more startling performances may be anticipated tomorrow when many of the foremost teams have major scheduled.

There are two games tomorrow which undoubtedly will grip public attention. One will be played between Notre Dame and Pittsburgh, the other between Army and Yale.

The Notre Dame-Pittsburgh game is highly important to the gridiron followers because it will go a long way in deciding Notre Dame position.

Held to a scoreless tie by Northwestern, Notre Dame raced through Drake to gain 636 yards, pile up 23 first downs and score 63 points.

Pitt is an undefeated team. It has seven veteran regulars. It has been brought along carefully with this game in view. Jock Sutherland has seen four of his Pittsburgh teams play Notre Dame and not once has Pitt won. Two weeks ago chances looked much better for a Pittsburgh win than they do today. Granted that Drake was up to standard, Notre Dame will be a hard team to beat tomorrow.

Army's defeat by Harvard a week ago tumbled Major Sasse's squad out of the undefeated class, and in addition, the Harvard game took plenty out of Army, just as the same game took plenty out of Harvard. Rarely have I seen two teams forced to keep entirely on edge without a minute's let-up from start to finish.

When Army goes into the bowl tomorrow it will be without Sebastian and Stecker, and Elliott, too, probably will be sidelined.

When Harvard plays Texas in the Harvard Stadium tomorrow, it will do so without the three center men who started against the Army. Halliwell, center; Jim Esterly and Henry Myerson, guards, are out of the intersectional clash with the 1930 Southwest Conference champions, and Esterly has been lost for the season.

Yale came tremendously in the week between its Georgia defeat and its victory over Chicago. Mal Stevens is getting his offense rolling, but what is equally important at this stage he has a brisk competition going on for team places between A and B team players.

Yale, judging from mid-west reports of its Chicago game, will come a long way every Saturday from now on. Certainly it will have the edge on Army in physical condition, undoubtedly the bowl game will be close, and probably a battle of backfields. I would not be surprised to see a long run or pass decide this game.

DEER SEASON TO OPEN FOR 15 DAYS, DEC. 1ST

HARRISBURG, Oct. 23.—With deer season opening on Dec. 1, and continuing for 15 days, the board of game commissioners has issued a warning to hunters concerning the state regulations governing the killing and the protection of bucks and does.

The following regulations are stressed:

"A hunter may kill only 1 deer, either a buck or a doe.

"A legal deer must either have two or more points to one antler—or be without visible antlers or horns, and weigh at least 40 pounds with entrails removed.

"It is unlawful for any body of men, either camping together or hunting in unison, or in any manner cooperating with each other, to kill or be possessed of, in one season, more than six legal deer.

"It is not legal for hunters to hire a hunting camp or other headquarters for the purpose of hunting deer, with the assumption that such headquarters would be regarded as a public boarding house or hotel and that each individual hunter residing at such headquarters would be permitted to kill one deer.

"A party of men boarding at a private camp, cabin, or other headquarters established for the purpose of hunting and not recognized as a public boarding house or hotel where travelers are accommodated the year round, may not lawfully kill more than six deer in one season regardless of how many hunters are boarded at the camp.

"No special license is needed to hunt deer. Both resident and non-resident hunters' license permit the killing of both sexes. The 1931 Legislature removed the special deer license feature from the game laws. A license issued in one county will be good in all other counties.

"Hunters will need to exercise more caution in selecting legal quarry this year than ever before, because they will have to be just as certain that an antlerless deer has no spikes or horns, and is of proper weight, as they are that a buck has two or more points, or a "Y" to one antler. Commission officials are of the opinion that this added necessity for caution will not only decrease the number of violations for killing illegal deer, but will be one of the greatest safety provisions of the game laws. Hunters will be forced to think twice and look carefully before shooting.

"Sportsmen are urged to cooperate to the fullest extent with officials of the Commission this year in an effort to make the deer season one of the best in the history of the Commonwealth. Although antlerless deer were hunted previously under special seasons, this is the first time since the enactment of the "Buck Law", a quarter of a century ago that both sexes of deer were declared legal prey during the same period."

PLAN PARTY

The Shepherds' Delight Lodge will hold a Halloween party for the members in the F. P. A. Hall on November 2nd.
